The two defeats of the Bostons have placed the New Yorks in the heat of the battle, and since to-day's game all of the players, even those ago, are confident that the champions will pull out in the lead, with games to spare. They will pay no attention to the spare games, however. What they want now are victories, and they are playing for them. The work of the team at the present time is fully equal to that of last season, both at the bat and in the field. In addition they have four good pitchers, and if the team will continue to give O'Day and Craue the support that they gave them yesterday and to-day there is no reason why these two men cannot win about every game they pitch.

To-day's game was an easy one for the home team and they won almost as they pleased. It was with the bat that the victory was scored, as the New Yorks earned six of their seven runs. The seventh run was not earned owing to a base on balls helping a runner around. The only error by the visitors, a wild throw by they netted two runs, the only runs scored by the visitors. At times the play was brilliant, and altogether it was a model game to look at. Fields cut off a hit from O'Rourke's bat in the while White made a remarkable one hand stop least one run. These were only two of the features of the work of the visitors. Dunlap played in his old place, at second, and

There is no doubt that the Smoky City lads were after the game to-day, and would have got it had not the home team hit the ball, while they were almost helpless in this direction. O'Day was in the box for the home team, with Brown behind the bat, Ewing still being unable to play. When the game began there was a doubtful feeling as to the champions winning with this battery, but the manner in which no doubt about to-day's rame, for the visitors were wholly at his mercy. Six scattered hits were all they could get, and the only hit that was of any use to them was made by Dunlan after Ward had placed two men on bases by his Teemer is located a half mile above them. Gaudaur rowed over the course this afternoon for the first time. His training will consist of a turn up and down the course twice a day, besides his walk. The powerful carsman and his handsome trainer are stopping at the National Hotel and are the objects for the eyes of many curious people. St. John will arrive here this day a week. Gaudaur says that he will give Teemer a race at St. Louis after the race of Friday a week, whether he wins or not and says positively that he will defeat Teemer and could do so now, but those who size up Teemer and Gaudaur do not speak that way. They make it a study to look for bets and say nothing. It looks as though St. Louis money will not go a begging, and in face of Gaudaur's confidence and the fact that Teemer has a mighty able carsman to row againsts. Teemer knows it as well as others do, and when the day comes around the McKeesport carsman will show the able St. Louis carsman that it will require terrible hard efforts on the part of Jake to defeat him. The 23 starters assembled in the paddock be-fore the race and received finishing touches before at least a thousand anxious bettors. When single file paraded by the stand, making a beautiful show, Marie Lovell was the leader. They were soon at the post and the crowd was still in an anxious suspense. As they came to the regular judge's stand, St. Carlo and Sinaloa began to close up, but the distance was too short, and Chaos got the verdict by a good neck. St. Carlo was two lengths in front of Sinaloa.

The crowd was tremendous. As early as 12 o'clock race-goers began to arrive, and from that time on they came in a steady stream, pouring through the gates until not a seat was lett. A SUITABLE SPOT SPRINGFIELD, MASS., September 5.-The second day's programme for the grand circuit meeting drew a large crowd to Hampden Park, and a more pleasant day for outdoor amuse the horses could go fast, and, considering that this course is a couple of seconds slower than the Charter Oak course, the miles were recled A SUITABLE SPOT.

It is fitting that on this historic spot, within few paces of the outer walls of old Fort Du-a few paces of the outer walls of old Fort Duquesne, we, the men of a later day, some of us the descendants of those, who in these valleys suffered and fought should raise this great temple to the arts of peace, and here in "the gateway of the West" should in triumph erect a monument which tells more splendidly than any work of the sculptor or of the painter, of the blessings which a kindly Providence has bestowed upon the fervent spirit and diligence in business.

Fellow citzens, this evening may, in some sense, I trust, be regarded as marking the initial point in a new development of the life of our splendid communities. This great undertaking represents the combined efforts of our people, and reveals the existence of a greater degree of public spirit than we have at times been tempted to allow to ourselves. May we not hope that the carrying to a successful conclusion of this enterprise, which is destined, as we believe, to do so much to educate and advance the best interests of our people, may be followed by yet other and equally important undertakings. May we not hope that there may be a yet larger and higher consecration of the wealth of these two great cities, and of the region of which they are the center, to the course of human enlightenment and philanthropy.

It is not now the time or the place to point the firm footing, leaving plenty of ro, m inside, and Turner saw his chance and sent Gossip Jr., along overhauling the Wilkes horse, when Robins gradually pulled across, shutting the gelding off. The judges took an unnessary time to consider, but only gave the heat to Gossip Jr., and sent Roy Wilkes back to last position. thropy.

It is not now the time or the place to point out to you the pressing needs which still exist, but it surely is a fitting time to remind you of all the duties which increasing wealth brings, and to hid you remember that there is that scattereth and yet increaseth, and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to waver!

Gossip Jr., and sent Roy Wilkes back to last position.

The first event for 2:18 trotters found Susie S as fast as ever, and she was only obliged to beat 2:29 once to defeat her field. Her wonderful speed was seen in the second heat, when she made a standstill and then came on and finished first trotting the last half in about 1:04%. Kit Curry, who reappeared in the regular line, after a couple of weeks' visit to the West, was notable to give the Kentucky mare as good he race as was expected, for her long journey told on her and took away her speed. Newton B made one of his fast finishes, and would have won the second heat had he kept steady, but he seems to be off his balance at present. The guaranteed stake of $5,000 brought out a good field of nine, but the gray stallion, Alcryon, was master of the situation, and three heats brought the affair to an end.

The following are the summaries: Rev. Morgan M. Sheedy was next intro-duced and delivered a prayer, after which the immense audience dispersed itself through all parts of the vast building and spent the rest of the evening in sight seeing, and the big show was inaugurated for a 40-day campaign. FLAWS TO BE BEMEDIED.

Of course there were some drawbacks, and more or less friction. There was no provision to give visitors checks, and if any one turned the turnstile outward "to see man" or for any other purpose, he stayed out or "put up" again.
There is one drawback that probably cannot be at once remedied. The aisles in the main building are not wide enough. Evidently space was valuable, and when the attendance is once at flood-tide there will be a dently space was valuable, and when the attendance is once at flood-tide there will be a vast amount of "scrouging."

The management expressed itself satisfied. While all that was expected was not realized, there was enough bud to assure abundant fruitage, and in a few days it will materialize. President Marvin will leave soon to be absent for some weeks, and Vice President Bindley will take the helm if he wishes exhibitors to allow no grass to grow under their feet, and get their exhibits in shape.

It is estimated that there were 10,000 people in the building yesterday, and there would have been many more had it not been that the railway companies had issued excursion tokets from various towns good for the day only, and in consequence many people were obliged to start home before the opening. These people expected to find the show in full blast in the afternoon, and to be able to come, see and conquer and go home all the same day. As a rule, they lost no time in finding President Marvin, who gave an ample explanation and assuaged his visitors' vexation by furnishing them with complimentary tickets good at any time during the Exposition. When they come back they will find the building open continuously from 9 o'clock A. M. until 10 P. M., when the tattoo will be sounded, which will mean "lights out."

One of the most complete and useful exhibits in the building will be the Yale and Towne model postoffice, and to-day all visitors can have their mail directed to it, and it will be delivered. The model is not only unique, but complete, and Postmaster Larkin and Superintendent Collins are as proud of it as ladies are of Easter bonnets.

The crowd seemed to have eaten supper before goins last night, as the ladies clad a la Martha Washington didn't have much to do. Popcorn and lemonade seemed to be about the only gustatory delights indulged in.

While the rain had a deterrept effect on attendance, it added vastly to the comfort of the evening by laying the dust in the vicinity.

He has robbed two stages records. He has robbed two stages inside of 15 minutes and vanished like a specter, carrying his booty and leaving no trace behind. Last night, about 12 o'clock, the driver of the stage on the Ayer-Linkville line, was startled by the familiar command of "Halt!" coming from the wayside. He had often declared that no robber could hold him up, but he held his hands up as high as he could. After robbing the express box as he could. After robbing the express box

The driver listened and the command "Halt!" was borne to his ears. The wheels stopped, and then he heard blows of an ax on the express box. It is not known how much money was taken from the south-bound stage, as the drivers were not allowed to speak to each other, and only one of them has reached here so far.
